RECOGNITION OF PROFICIENCY

The Recognition of Proficiency has been established by The Osteopathic Cranial Academy to designate members who have the clinical skills in osteopathic diagnosis and treatment, utilizing The Cranial Concept. Members who have taken proficiency testing have by written, oral and practical examination demonstrated adequacy of skill in Osteopathy in the Cranial Field at that point in time; however, The Osteopathic Cranial Academy does not make any representation regarding the present or prior proficiency of individual members.

- b. Any MD Associate Member shall be eligible for nomination and election as Secretary of the Board by the General Membership. Any MD Associate Member shall be eligible for nomination and election as Treasurer of the Board by the Board of Directors. MD Nominees are subject to paragraph 1(D) above, and it is required that such person, at the time of their election, shall have successfully completed the OCA proficiency exam.

- 3. Duties. The duties of the Officers shall be such as their titles by general usage would indicate, or as the Board of Directors from time to time may prescribe.

4. Vacancy and Removal.

- a. Any vacancy occurring on the Board of Directors, among the Officers other than by virtue of expiration of term, shall be filled by election of the Board of Directors at any regular or special meeting of the Board unless otherwise provided for in the bylaws. An Officer so elected shall serve the unexpired term of his or her predecessor in office.

- b. The Board of Directors, in its discretion, by a two-thirds vote of all its members, may remove any Officer for cause. Any Officer to be removed must be given notice of the meeting at which his or her removal will be a matter of business no less than fifteen (15) days prior to the meeting by telephone voice or facsimile communication or first class U. S. mail, postage prepaid.
- c. However, any Officer who is absent from two (2) meetings of the Board of Directors, whether regular or special, shall forfeit his or her position without notice or further action of the Board of Directors.

ARTICLE VI

Board of Directors

1. Composition.

- a. The Osteopathic Cranial Academy shall be governed by a Board of Directors consisting of the President, President-Elect, Secretary, Treasurer, six (6) Directors and the Immediate Past President of The Osteopathic Cranial Academy. These persons shall hold office until their successors are elected and qualified as provided herein
- b. MD Associate Members: The number of MD Associate Members on the Board of Directors shall be limited to a maximum of two (2). An MD Associate Member may only serve as one of the two possible officer positions (Secretary or Treasurer). If an MD is elected to the Board of Directors, that MD Director or Officer shall replace the appointed Associate MD advisor to the Board (ARTICLE VI Section 9 paragraph a).

2. Authority. The government and management of The Osteopathic Cranial Academy shall be vested in the Board of Directors. Their duties shall include, but not be limited to, the establishment of policy.

3. Manner of Election and Term. Two (2) Directors shall be elected in conjunction with each annual meeting, by a printed or secure online ballot vote of the members for a term of three (3) years.
4. Meetings of the Board of Directors. The Board of Directors shall meet at least twice during each calendar year at such time and such place as it may prescribe. Notice of all such meetings shall be given to the Officers and Directors by written, telephonic (voice or facsimile) notice not less than fifteen (15) days before the meeting is held. Special meetings of the Board of Directors may be called by the President or at the request of any three members of the Board of Directors. Notice of such special meeting shall be given to the Officers and Directors by written or telephonic (voice or facsimile) notice not less than seventy-two (72) hours before the meeting is held.
5. Voting. Voting rights of a Director shall not be delegated to another nor exercised by proxy.
6. Other Methods of Voting. Action taken by a mail, telephone (voice or facsimile) or electronic (email or webpage) ballot of the members of the Board in which at least two thirds the majority of all members in writing, except in cases when a two-thirds majority is specified in the bylaws, indicate themselves in agreement, shall constitute a valid action of the Board of Directors and shall be reported in the minutes of the next regular or special meeting of the Board of Directors.

7. Vacancy and Removal.

- a. Any vacancy occurring on the Board of Directors, other than by virtue of expiration of term, shall be filled by election of the Board of Directors at any regular or special meeting of the Board. A Director so elected shall serve the unexpired term of his or her predecessor in office.
- b. The Board of Directors, in its discretion, by a two-thirds vote of all its members, may remove any Director for cause. Any Director to be removed must be given notice of the meeting at which his or her removal will be a matter of business no less than fifteen (15) days prior to the meeting by telephone voice or facsimile communication of first class U. S. mail, postage prepaid.
- c. However, any Director who is absent from two (2) meetings of the Board of Directors, whether regular or special, shall forfeit his or her position without notice or further action of the Board of Directors.
- d. Affiliate and Associate Advisors to the Board (or their surrogates) are required to be present at the June Board of Directors meeting. Attendance at other meetings of the board of directors is encouraged, but not required.

8. Quorum. Five (5) members of the Board of Directors shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business at any meeting of the Board of Directors.

9. Appointments

- a. The Associate Dental Members, The Associate MD Members and the Affiliate Members may each elect one representative from their category to serve as advisors to the Board of Directors. In the absence of such elections, the President may appoint a representative from the Associate and Affiliate membership to serve as advisors to the Board of Directors. Such advisors shall be entitled to attend all regular and special meetings of Board of Directors, enter into discussions on any matters before the Board of Directors, and shall have the right to make motions and vote.
- b. The Student and Resident members together may elect one Physician in Training representative to serve as advisor to the Board of Directors. In the absence of such elections, the President may appoint a representative from the Physician in Training membership to serve as advisor to the Board of Directors. Such advisor shall be entitled to attend all regular and special meetings of Board of Directors, enter into discussions on any matters before the Board of Directors, but shall not have the right to make motions or vote.

ARTICLE VII Committees

1. The Osteopathic Cranial Academy shall have and maintain the following Standing Committees:
  - a. Executive. This committee shall consist of the elected Officers of The Osteopathic Cranial Academy and shall be responsible for the administration of The Osteopathic Cranial Academy, in between meetings of the Board of Directors.

  - iii. Continuing Studies Committee: This committee shall be responsible for planning, administering and evaluating all other continuing education activities of The Osteopathic Cranial Academy, not within the jurisdiction of the other education committees, with the approval of the Board of Directors.
- d. Fellowship. This committee shall consist of six members of The Osteopathic Cranial Academy who are Fellows, nominated by the Nominating Committee and approved by the Board of Directors. Each term shall be three years which shall initially be staggered terms of one year, two years, and three years. Each committee member may be reappointed to serve a maximum of three consecutive terms.

- e. Finance. This committee, consisting of the Executive Director and the Treasurer (who shall act as chair), shall review and recommend to the Board of Directors action on fiscal matters coming before it.
- f. Nominating. This committee shall consist of seven (7) persons.
  - i. The immediate past president of The Osteopathic Cranial Academy or if that person is unwilling or unable to serve, another past president of The Osteopathic Cranial Academy, who shall serve as the chair.
  - ii. The President of The Osteopathic Cranial Academy.
  - iii. The President-Elect of The Osteopathic Cranial Academy.
  - iv. The chair of the Fellowship Committee or if that person is unwilling or unable to serve, another non-Board member of the Fellowship Committee.
  - v. A member of the Credentials Committee who is not the chair and is not a member of the Board of Directors.
  - vi. A non-FCA proficiency trained member of The Osteopathic Cranial Academy.
  - vii. A proficiency recognized or FCA member of The Osteopathic Cranial Academy who is not a member of the Board of Directors.

The committee shall provide a slate, listing nominees for the offices to be voted upon by the membership in conjunction with each annual meeting, by a printed or secure online ballot vote. Additionally, the committee shall provide nominees for designated awards of The Osteopathic Cranial Academy unless otherwise specified in the bylaws.

- g. Committee of Chairs. This committee shall consist of the chairs of all standing or special committees. It shall be chaired by the President-Elect and shall review and make recommendation regarding the continuation or modification of the strategic plan.
- 2. The Standing Committees, including the chair when not otherwise provided, shall be appointed by the President and approved by the Board of Directors.
- 3. The President and the President-Elect shall serve as ex-officio members of all committees.
- 4. The committees or task forces of The Osteopathic Cranial Academy shall not, except with the prior approval of the Board of Directors, obligate The Osteopathic Cranial Academy in any financial matter over and above incidental expenses of its operation for which a budget has been approved.
- 5. In addition to the above-described committees, the President, with the approval of the Board of Directors, may appoint such other committees or task forces as he or she deems appropriate for the accomplishment of the purposes of The Osteopathic Cranial Academy.

ARTICLE VIII

Executive Director and Staff

Hire and Tenure. The Board of Directors may employ staff or may contract to provide staff assistance. The chief staff officer shall be known as the "Executive Director" and shall perform such duties as prescribed by the Board of Directors.

ARTICLE IX

Finance

1. Fiscal Period. The fiscal period of The Osteopathic Cranial Academy shall be January 1 through December 31 of each year.
2. Budget. The Board of Directors shall adopt in advance of the fiscal period an annual operating budget covering activities of The Osteopathic Cranial Academy.
3. Audit. The accounts of The Osteopathic Cranial Academy shall be audited or reviewed not less than annually by a Certified Public Accountant who shall be employed by, and report to, the Board of Directors.

ARTICLE X

Amendments

These Bylaws may be amended or repealed by a two-thirds vote of the Board of Directors present and voting at any regular or special meeting of the Board. Notice of such changes must be sent in writing to the Directors at least fifteen (15) days before such meeting. Amendments may be proposed by a committee appointed for that purpose, or by any three (3) Regular Members, in writing to the Board.

ARTICLE XI

Indemnification

To the full extent authorized by law and permitted by The Osteopathic Cranial Academy's resources, it shall indemnify from any financial loss, including the cost of any defense, arising out of a claim predicated upon the conduct of their official duties, all Officers, Directors, committee chairs and members, and employees made a party in any administrative, civil or criminal action or proceeding by reason of their position. The Osteopathic Cranial Academy shall have the option of purchasing insurance to protect or securing counsel to represent each of the aforementioned persons to satisfy its obligation hereunder.

ARTICLE XII

Dues

1. Establishment of Dues. Dues for all categories of membership may be established from time to time by resolution of the Board of Directors.
2. Delinquency and Cancellation. Any member who shall be delinquent in dues for a period of ninety (90) days from the time dues become due and payable shall be notified of such delinquency and suspended.
3. Refunds. All dues shall be non-refundable.
4. Special Payments. The Executive Director may, with the consent of the President, suspend, remit or make special arrangements for the payment of dues or assessments.

Reinstatement. Memberships may be reinstated upon such terms as the Board of Directors may from time to time determine.

ARTICLE XIII

Meetings

Annual Meeting. The annual meeting shall be held at such date, time and place as determined by the Board of Directors and such other meetings shall be held as determined by the Board of Directors.

Voting. At all meetings of The Osteopathic Cranial Academy, each Regular Member and Associate Member shall have one (1) vote, and may take part and vote in person only. In secure online elections, each Regular Member and Associate Member shall have one (1) vote and may take part as specified by the election format. Unless otherwise specifically provided by these Bylaws, a majority vote of those voting members voting shall control.

ARTICLE XIV

Change in Membership Status

Since members may change status from time to time, the Executive Director shall, as appropriate:

Take action to properly assign members to the proper membership category.

Collect appropriate dues for the newly assigned category at the start of the next membership year.

Cancel membership at the end of the fiscal year that applies for such membership, if the member is no longer eligible for membership.

Members, whose memberships have been terminated or reassigned because of career changes, shall only have such privileges as the reassigned memberships provide or, if terminated, no privileges of membership.

ARTICLE XV

Distribution of Assets on Dissolution

No part of the net earnings of The Osteopathic Cranial Academy shall inure to the benefit of, or be distributable to its members, Officers, or other private persons, except that it shall be authorized and empowered to pay reasonable compensation for services rendered and to make payments and distributions in furtherance of the purposes set forth in Article II hereof.

1. Upon the dissolution of The Osteopathic Cranial Academy, assets shall be distributed to one or more organizations exempt under section 501(c)(6) of the Internal Revenue Code, or corresponding section of any future federal tax code, or shall be distributed to the federal government, or to a state or local government, for a public purpose. Any assets not so disposed of shall be disposed of by a court of appropriate jurisdiction of the county in which its principal office is located, exclusively for such purposes or to such organization or organizations, as said court shall determine which are organized and operated exclusively for such purposes.

ARTICLE XVI

Statement of Ethics

The Osteopathic Cranial Academy is an affiliate society of the American Academy of Osteopathy and adheres to the Code of Ethics of the American Osteopathic Association. A code of ethics, specific to the practice Osteopathy in the Cranial Field, shall also be maintained and updated. Further, its members adhere to the purposes described in Article II hereof, to the promotion of the health and well-being of humankind through the diagnosis and treatment of patients based upon the principles and practice of osteopathic medicine and the maintenance of professional competence.

Watering the Withering Fields Sutherland Memorial Lecture 2022, Zina Pelkey DO, FCA

“A thought strikes him that the cerebro spinal fluid is the highest known element ... and unless the brain furnished this fluid in abundance a disabled condition of the body will remain. He who is able to reason will see that this great river of life must be tapped and the withering field irrigated at once, or the harvest of health be forever lost.”<sup>i</sup>

This is the greatest honor!

In “Contributions of Thought,” Sutherland quoted a philosopher who wrote: “To the dreamer who will work and the worker who will dream, life surrenders all things.” And he added: “To the digger who will take time to dream and the dreamer who will wake up and dig, Dr. Andrew Taylor Still’s science of osteopathy will unfold into a magnitude equal to that of the heavens.”<sup>2</sup>

How did I come to osteopathy?

I was a dreamy child and absolutely loved the ocean. It put me in touch with a peaceful connection to the beauty of nature. When I learned about the origins of life in the sea and later about that primordial soup where life was ignited with a flash of light, I began to understand the connectedness of all living things.

I wanted to be a doctor, a psychiatrist. My family was a little crazy so I wanted to understand and help people like that. But my teachers and parents told me that I couldn't do that because I'm a girl, and we were not rich; and they said you have to be really smart to be a doctor and, apparently, they didn't think I had the brains for it.

I went to San Francisco State College and majored in psychology and drama. Both have served me well as an osteopath. I waitressed and learned first-hand about carpal tunnel syndrome. It was an interesting time in San Francisco in 1960, and I dropped out of school, married, had two kids. As a waitress I didn't make much more than I had to pay a babysitter. So, I quit and started a daycare in my home.

I became a Montessori teacher. Maria Montessori was interested in the street children in Rome. She found a room where she made some toys for them and studied how children learn. One day someone asked her to watch their newborn baby. As the children gathered around, the baby calmed down and a quiet fell over the room. You know, like when you are in a lovely meadow on a summer day and there is a silence, the crickets stop chirping, the breeze stops rustling the leaves—it's one of those magical moments.

Then after a while the kids started moving about and making their usual noise, but one asked what that moment had been. Montessori explained it was "silence." The next day the kids asked to make the silence again, and it became a daily exercise: my first lesson in still points. I taught in this pre-school in NYC. It was the 60's and I was interested in various ways of sensing. We had something called a mystery bag that had little toys and items like a crayon, or button. The children would try to name what they felt. We also had a game where they would match little color squares and learn the names of the colors. So I tried putting the colors in the mystery bag and it was so interesting that many children could feel the colors and name them correctly.

Little kids haven't been taught that you can't do that, so they did it. We played follow the leader. The first child in a line makes a movement and each one in turn imitates it. I tried doing it in reverse. The last one did something and the one in front of them imitated without seeing what they did. Most of them could sense the movement, but the kid who was always out of sync with the room couldn't. One [That was one] of my first lessons in sensing.

I ran a restaurant with my sister and started a catering business. If I was making a sauce I would stick my finger in and taste to see if it needed more salt or spice—another sensory development: chemical analysis.

I opened a bakery and discovered that I could feel the sweetness or need for salt in the dough. We made everything from scratch. There was a salesman who kept telling me I was foolish to do that since he sold artificial butter & vanilla flavoring and mixes. I could smell him coming into the store. He gave me a bag of corn muffin mix. One morning two employees didn't show up, and I was so rushed that I tried this mix. You just add water and bake it.

I never made cornbread in the bakery because by the afternoon it gets dry and stale. These muffins were moist and springy. After the morning rush I went to wash the metal mixer bowl, and it was corroded from the muffin mix! We didn't sell any more of those muffins, but we had a good time bouncing them around the bakery for days—thus, more sensory experiences and a confirmation that there is truth and health in nature.

There were two women that used to come into the bakery. One was a chiropractor who had an office across the street. She liked the healthy choices like granola cookies. The other one—who always chose the richest, most chocolatey treats—there was something about her; I just wanted to be in her presence. I would come down to the counter and stand there. One day I injured my back lifting heavy sacks and decided to try the chiropractor. It was very strange; she barely used any force, and she touched other areas, not just my back. She had her hands on my neck and asked if there was a problem with my leg. There was, but I thought she was really weird. After that treatment, my back was better and so was my leg. I thought that was nice one-on-one work that I might learn.

Something dreadful happened to me. It really made me think about what I was doing with my life—working 18 hours a day, 7 days a week just making people fat. For years I had been saying “all the work that I put into this I could have been a doctor!” I decided to sell the bakery and try to go to chiropractic school.

I had to finish getting my bachelor’s degree and take all the pre-med courses. It was all fascinating information that I loved learning and I did very well. One day the head of bio hauled me into his office and told me I was aiming too low and should apply to medical school.

I said, “No, I can’t do that; I’m a girl and I’m not rich or smart. But he said the banks would loan me the money, so I applied to all the medical schools in the NYC area including NYCOM. I knew I wouldn’t get in, but thought I would just try. The MD schools sent rejections as soon as they got my check, but NYCOM called me for an interview.

I was so thrilled that I got that far, but knew it was hopeless. To get my degree, I had 26 credits in life experience things like jazz of the 60’s, art, pastry, etc. I had planned to go to Carnegie Hall to hear Rudolph Serkin play my favorite Rachmaninoff concerto the night before. At first I thought that I should stay home and think of what to say, but I decided it didn’t matter; I wasn’t going to get in. It was a fabulous concert and Rudolph Serkin was 88—twicemy age.

The next day at the interview someone asked why I thought that, at this point in my life, I could go to medical school. I told him, “Well, last night I heard Serkin at Carnegie Hall playing the Rach 3 and he’s 88, so I think I still have a few good years. Apparently, they took that as a sign of confidence when really it was a total lack. To my great surprise, I got in.

When I told my mother she said word-for-word the same thing she said when I was nine years old, “What do you want to be a doctor for? Why don’t you be a nurse and marry a doctor.”

The first day at NYCOM I met Laura Rampil. We were assigned the same locker. Everyone else had their own. We became friends and joined the group that brought in visiting OMM clinicians for weekend workshops. No one wanted to have to pick them up at the airport and take them to breakfast and dinner, so we did. We got to know Tony Chila, Bob Fulford, and some other very great teachers. Laura turned me on to the writings of A.T. Still. It made me wonder why we weren’t being taught about treatment of ALL medical conditions ... even on rotations, OMT was considered something for back pain.

Hugh Ettlinger was my favorite teacher, and one day he suddenly stopped talking a mile a minute because that woman, who was with the chiropractor who inspired me in the bakery, had walked in. They hugged, so happy to see each other. She was Bonnie Gintis. No wonder I loved to stand in her presence.

Laura and I took our first cranial course with Gerry Slattery who spoke about Prana and Chi, and Eric Dolgin, Mark Rosen, Ilene Spector, Paul Miller, Michael Porvaznik and Keith Swan. I took an Intro Cranial course every year after that. Finally, they told me I had to stop being a student and start teaching.

That first course was a turning point for me, I found my osteopathic family. Sutherland’s concepts made me wake up and dig. I experienced some of that “magnitude equal to that of the heavens.”

But I also wondered why more people didn’t embrace this amazing work.

But this is not about my history, it’s about Will Sutherland’s ## amazing contributions.

In 1899 when, as a student, Will Sutherland “stood looking and thinking in the channel of Dr. Still’s philosophy” his “attention was called to the beveled articular surfaces of the sphenoid bone” that appeared to be designed for a respiratory type of motion, “like the gills of a fish.” With his persistent curiosity, deep study and contemplation, commitment to Still’s principles, Will’s determination uncovered truths of nature that allow us to serve our patient’s inner health facilitating profound shifts. He never hesitated to do the hardest work, and later to engage his associates in this study and teaching.

After 30 years of research and experimentation on himself, he began to publish his findings: first in 1929, an article on bedside technique and later in 1931, “Skull Notions” by “Blunt Bone Bill”—30 years of study to understand the most intricate details of the cranium and its function! How many of us have demonstrated this kind of commitment to research?

Sutherland delved deeply into anatomic detail with the associated physiologic correlations. You can just visualize what he is describing! “Some marvelous results have been accomplished in cardiac and lymph disorders by attending to the crura of the diaphragm. The application of applied anatomy is skilled attention. The technique becomes simple when one’s knowledge of the lumbocostal arches, or ligamentum arcuata, interna and externa, is properly understood. The ligamentum externum, having its lateral attachment on the tip and lower margin of the 12th rib, is of easy access by the insertion of a finger beneath the rib, affording gentle movement upward and laterally. This draws the ligamentum externum laterally, and in turn draws the ligamentum internum laterally and frees abnormal tension strain at the crural area.” I find this is needed as often as OA release.

In Skull Notions July 1931 issue, he described the crista galli. “Is it the locomotive bell rope that swings the ethmoid outward in a sneeze?”<sup>4</sup>

“The ethmoid bone with its turbinates provides thought for extended study ... A little bone, yet it has articular relationship with thirteen others. ... It might be the ‘bell-sheep’ of the entire flock of cranial and facial bones, leading them in membranous articular mobility.”<sup>5</sup>

Will developed a hypothesis that viewed the cerebral “wings as folding and the walls of the ventricles contracting during inspiration and ... dilating with expiration. All this while the convolutions of the hemispheres coil and uncoil.” Again you can just visualize this as he describes the detailed anatomy. He explained “The falx cerebri and tentorium cerebelli, especially function as intermedial, propellant tension bands between the convolutions and the articulations as well as the balance-reciprocants in the equalization of articular mobility.”

“In consideration of this hypothesis, it is well to bear in mind that the walls of the 3rd ventricle are practically formed by the thalami, while the walls of the 4th ventricle are within the boundary of the cerebellum, pons and medulla oblongata. And has a correlation in the functioning of the upper brain, while the 4th ventricle is rhomboidal in shape and has a functional correlation with the lower brain. ...”<sup>6</sup>

“Pathology informs us that in many instances where there are adhesions or other anomalies of the dural, arachnoid and pial membranes that restrict the flow of cerebro spinal fluid, we find dilation of the ventricles.” He goes on to say: “We visualize the pituitary body as “riding in the saddle” of the sphenoid bone ... alternately shifting forward and backward during inspiration and expiration. We are inclined to believe that inactivity of this movement of the pituitary body in the sella turcica through mechanical membranous articular restriction is the primary cause of pituitary secretory disturbances.”<sup>7</sup>

Describing cranial articular motion Will asked, “Where were the indications for a primary respiratory mechanism? Such a mechanism would necessarily include motility of the central nervous system and motion of the cerebrospinal fluid.” He found an answer in an authoritative text of Applied Physiology. It read: "All the physiologic centers, including that of respiration, are located in the floor of the fourth ventricle." Sutherland reasoned that if one could compress the cerebellum, the roof of V4, the subsequent motion of the CSF, a motion that would be continuous with the other ventricles and the subarachnoid space surrounding the brain and 6 spinal cord." This would "affect the physiologic centers in the medulla oblongata, and in consequence, the secondary physiologic activity throughout the body systems."<sup>8</sup> Don't you just love studying and learning how all these intricate and fascinating mechanisms work!

This reminds me of my chef days. These circumventricular organs are the fingers tasting the sauce, transmitting the information about the chemical makeup to the centers that orchestrate our homeodynamic state.

He said, "It was clear that the centers in the floor of the fourth ventricle are primary and that the function of the diaphragm, heart and lungs is secondary. Through the functions of the primary respiratory mechanism, the physiologic centers in the medulla relate to the secondary physiology of the living human body."<sup>9</sup>

Through this great battery, the Tide, you find the "highest known element" is transmuted to those physiologic centers. The nuclei of the cranial nerves also receive transmutation from this Tide, from the battery that contains the "juice," distilled from material elements that man utilizes."<sup>10</sup>

"This pituitary body, riding so majestically in the sella turcica of the sphenoid bone, has an important physiological act in the cranial drama. ... This 'body' is the leader of the endocrine system. Imagine a leader without activity. Motility is essential in its physiologic functioning. ... A pulsing motility, as well as a ridable mobility during the alternating movement of the sphenoid, occurs with the periods of respiration. Apparently, the pituitary body is governed by the nervous system through a cable of multitudinous nerve fibers in the infundibulum with cell centers in the hypothalamus. These cells would receive nourishment from that highest known element, the cerebrospinal fluid.”<sup>11</sup>

What significant intricate details he explored! No wonder he told us: “Treatment is a specific treatment that requires an adequate working knowledge of the mechanical articular surfaces of all the cranial and facial bones and their mode of action. Without this knowledge it is wiser to leave it alone.”<sup>12</sup>

Sutherland didn’t limit his exploration to cranial articular function, he said, “Within that CSF there is an invisible element that I refer to as the ‘Breath of Life.’ ... a fluid within this fluid. Something that does not mix, something that has potency as the thing that makes it move. ... Visualize a potency, an intelligent potency, that is more intelligent than your own human mentality.” ... “It is something you can depend upon to do the work for you.”<sup>13</sup>

In his initial teachings he hesitated to talk about this fluid Tide and the potency within it. He said, “It seemed to me to be the most uncanny thing you ever thought of.”<sup>14</sup>

Still today some teachers hesitate to emphasize this fundamental phenomena, believing students won’t be able to grasp these concepts. Instead, they emphasize bony relationships and patterns. We just gave an intro course in March where all 52 students “got it,” experienced it with the hands-on-hands teaching. Many of them wrote to us afterwards that the course changed their lives. Now they know the direction of their intended practice. They too felt part of the osteopathic family. This is why I feel so strongly that this is not something you learn online. Spending five days with a passionate, dedicated faculty, sharing meals and asking questions, hearing about cases helped, and of course the hand-to-hand lineage, is what inspires more docs to use this amazing gift from Will Sutherland.

Dr. Sutherland described the potency in the Tide as “something you can depend upon to tell you the truth.”<sup>15</sup>

He said, “When that short period is vibrating, sense it as a rhythmic balance in the fluid. This is the point of change. ... After the still point, the patient's body carries on the work. ... In the still point that arises ... the motor is idling and there is an interchange between all the fluids of the body. Something goes out from that quiver; a change, or transmutation, occurs in the fluid, an invisible something.... the change is in the constituents, or elements." <sup>16</sup>

"Transmutation ... it is a change into another nature, substance, form or condition. A transmutation changes something into another nature or condition." <sup>17</sup>

In the first edition of Osteopathy in the Cranial Field, Dr. Magoun wrote, "The fluid possesses an innate intelligence which molds the head of the newborn and often reduces the traumatic lesions encountered in childhood and later.... It occurs and we take it for granted as part of the Infinite Wisdom that shapes our ends." <sup>18</sup>

Will said, "I consider this functioning to be in accordance with the physiologic laws "not framed by human hand— to which Dr. Still frequently referred. <sup>19</sup> He spoke about, "That intelligent fluid, ... Something that nourishes nerve cells with that Breath of Life. A transmutation from that Breath of Life that runs in the nerve fiber, down those finer elements that dwell in the lymphatics."

Sutherland said, "There were some things that Dr. Still knew but hesitated to talk about because the ground had to be prepared before the seed could be sown. Yet, he had planted the seed for the cranial concept." <sup>20</sup>

I believe that today the ground has been prepared. For years this work has been blossoming in small gardens, but there is a need and opportunity for it to spread. We need a massive team of gardeners to cultivate and spread this work that has so much to offer to build the health of humanity in this time where nature and life are so threatened. Let's stand clear of factory farming, online learning, and cling to the sustainable nurturing of the life force. We need to water those fields lest they wither from neglect. It isn't difficult, Sutherland also told us: "If you understand the diagnosis, the treatment is easy."

All that precise anatomic detail, physiologic correlation and deep understanding of the PRM gave us a basis for thinking osteopathy. It is what allows us to help so many patients who suffer from Meniere's, trigeminal neuralgia, chronic sinusitis and headaches, as well as cognitive impairment after trauma and all medical concerns affecting all body systems.

When I had my practice, patients would ask if I could cure them and I would say, "I have seen some similar conditions and many of them did well with osteopathic treatment, but we are all unique. I will do my best."

Thinking Osteopathy

Sometimes I really didn't know where to start or what was needed, but I had these pictures of Still and Sutherland in my office. I would look up at them; they seemed to be smiling down at me because they had already told me what to do and they had full confidence. I stopped trying so hard to fix people and getting in my own way. I learned to trust that intelligence with a capital I.

In Sutherland's office, he had a plaque that read "Miracles not performed; cures not guaranteed; professional skill to the best of ability our only guarantee."<sup>21</sup>

At St. Barnabas, Hugh and I wanted to treat babies and children, but we really hadn't been taught. Anytime one of our friends had a baby, we would tell them we should examine it. We would pick the baby up and look at it this way and that and hand it back, saying baby is just fine. We convinced the neonatal docs that, because St. Barnabas was an osteopathic training hospital, we had to do "structural examinations" on all the newborns. We learned SO much there!

One of the first kids we saw in the clinic was a five-year-old with ADHD. He was medicated and very dull and lethargic. We took his history, including asking whether he ever complained that his head hurt. His mom said no, never. We examined him, and Hugh treated what we found. When they returned a couple of weeks later, he was bright and happy. He jumped up on the table and looked up at Hugh smiling. “My brain doesn’t hurt anymore!” he said. He probably had a headache from the day he was born.

We have all had experiences when we think osteopathy and serve that intelligence within. Here are some examples. When you see a two-year-old with chronic otitis, we don’t just do a particular maneuver. We have to look at that whole unique person. One of the first kids that I saw when I started practicing had chronic otitis. I had taken two cranial courses, so I thought I knew just what to do. I took the history, looked the kid over and I got on those temporal bones, and they were [not just] out of whack, they were not functioning. I treated them and I balanced it all out, and then there was beautiful motion. I said, “OK I think she’ll be fine, but why don’t you come back in a couple of weeks just to check.” She returned with a whopping ear infection, so I did the same thing again. Of course, they came back again with another otitis, and the pediatrician wanted to put tubes in. I did a more thorough exam and noticed that there was a little torque in the fibula. I asked, “Did something happen to her leg?” And the mom said, “Oh well, her brother ran over it with a tricycle, but that was a while ago and she was fine. It was nothing.” Well, it wasn’t nothing because that torque in the fibula went up into the hip and into the pelvis and up into the rib cage and up to the clavicle, which by the way is attached by the SCM muscle to the temporal bone. I treated that fibula, and I treated the whole child and then I never saw them again until there was another baby few years later. They brought the newborn to me immediately and said the first child never had another ear infection after that treatment. You never know, but we do the very best we can. And the more we’re careful and thorough and precise in our analysis and in our listening, and we are there with pure intention and unconditional love to allow that inner health to manifest, great things may happen.

A jazz musician called and asked if I could fix a dented parietal bone. He had been assaulted eight years prior—his head beaten with a bat. He had intractable severe headaches ever since and didn’t want to just take pain killers. He had significant vision problems, tinnitus and such severe hyperacusis that he couldn’t tolerate head-phones or play his saxophone. [He even] He was also very angry, irritable, and impatient. He had been to many experts, neuro-ophthalmologists, ENT's, etc. Even a holistic practitioner who did something called "Cranio-sacral therapy." After the first two treatments the headache was gone; soon all the symptoms resolved or diminished to the point that he could resume his practicing and performances. He was calm and pleasant even in the face of adversity. "You gave me back my life!" he said.

Early in my practice a woman with post mastectomy lymphedema came to me. Not only was her arm swollen, she didn't sweat on that side, and her fingers were so swollen she couldn't wear her wedding ring. She was using a pump recommended by her surgeon. I had never seen this but had been to the 1993 conference on lymphatics with Anne Wales and Hugh Ettlinger. I knew the anatomy and physiology.

Thinking osteopathy, I treated the restrictions in her ribs and diaphragm, opened up the thoracic outlet and released strains in her extremity and stimulated lymphatic flow—did a CV4. I advised no more pumping but gentle giggling with her arm elevated and suggested she shake a tambourine. On her first follow-up she was wearing her wedding ring and sweating normally and had minimal swelling. I gave a talk about lymphedema at her support group for people with breast and ovarian cancer, and my practice filled. I got a bunch of little tambourines and gave them out—because maintaining health should be fun.

Sometimes it's not that clear, and we really need to find a way to engage those inner forces. Paul was on the autism spectrum. He learned to speak from the computer and would say things like "You have mail!" but no real conversation at all. He walked on his toes and did a lot of self-stim, spinning. He would be calmer and more focused after treatment but, after many months, no effective communication. His mom made an appointment with Dr. Frymann, so I felt I needed to try harder to make a more precise diagnosis in case she called me. Of course, the harder I tried, the less I perceived. Finally, I just went looking for Paul, asking, in my intention, how I might help him. I got this image of him curled up, frightened in his heart. Approaching gently with love, I urged him to come out, reassuring him that he is safe. After a bit there was a huge shift, and he jumped off the table. Paul always knew when a treatment was finished. At his next visit his mom was ecstatic, saying about an hour after that treatment it was like he said, “Hello I’m Paul, I’m here.” I turned to him and asked how his legs were after the last treatment. He looked me in the eye and said, “They’ve been okay since I saw you last time.”

He has graduated from college now.

One more story: I got a call that a very dear old friend, and a very great man, was in intensive care and not likely to live. His daughter wanted me to come. His wife of 70 years had passed months prior. In the taxi to the hospital I was thinking CHF—I know about that. We helped lots of ICU patients at St. Barnabas.

Thinking osteopathy—I knew the physiology, cardiac function, preload, fascial and circulatory relationships, etc. When I got there, it was late and all the friends that had been at the bedside singing all day were gone. I greeted him but he was just gasping for breath; although he had been trying to sing along when friends were there, he wasn’t speaking but seemed to recognize me. I put my hands on, but soon realized it was not about preload or any of that.

He was on his way to his beloved wife. My job was to allow him to pass as comfortably as possible, to thank him for all he did for peace, the unity of our human family, and for our environment. It was “farewell dear friend, go in peace.” That was a heart breaking treatment but as Alan Becker said, “Accept the leadership of the ‘doctor within’ and work according to his rules.”<sup>22</sup> There are so many ways that we support the health of patients. “The charter of the American School of Osteopathy, the first osteopathic school, stated that its purpose was to teach methods for improving the practice of surgery, obstetrics, and the treatment of diseases generally.”<sup>23</sup>

Angus Cathie, DO, FAAO used to give a four-year course in anatomy. The 4th year was a case. The final oral exam was described thoroughly, with all the anatomic and physiologic correlations involved in the case. Today there are courses, workshops at convocation and elsewhere on techniques for this or that condition. But osteopathy is NOT glorified PT or “manual medicine.” They teach how to treat Covid. Kids with otitis are treated with the Galbreath mandibular drainage technique. Where is the evaluation of the whole unique person? Where is the engagement with that inner intelligence with a capital I? Students ask what is the treatment for this or that diagnosis as if there is a one-size fits all protocol.

I would like to give you my two-minute course on how to treat ANY medical issue on earth: a sprained ankle, gastroesophageal reflux, emphysema, A-fib, seizures—you name it. It’s a simple protocol but requires the development of the ability to think osteopathy.

1. Take a good history. It can take 5 or 10 minutes or longer. I never had those forms for patients to check off all their maladies and symptoms because as I talked to them, I learned much more relevant information. The look on their face when I asked about relationships, stresses, do you enjoy your work? By the time I got through, they knew that I’m someone genuinely interested in who they are and how they got to be this way. Of course, they forget or overlook things like getting shoved off the second floor terrace, but usually they remember when your hands touch associated areas where there was trauma.
2. Use your thinking-feeling-seeing fingers to do a thorough exam. Listen to what their body is telling you, look at range of motion and inherent motion, congestion, TART, check vitals, do a neuro exam, notice where and how the vitality, flow of the Tide, etc., is flowing well or restricted. Consider the anatomic and physiologic correlations involved. Notice what their inherent forces are trying to accomplish.
3. Serve that, find a way to facilitate what the body is trying to do. Most often, [it is] by finding that beautiful deep still point of balance where those forces are engaged and “something happens.”

As most SML lecturers, I felt very challenged to consider what might be my message in honor of Will Sutherland and his incredible contributions—an understanding of health with an infinite magnitude equal to the heavens, a study as deep as the mysteries of the sea, that deep level where something shifts ... As Sutherland said, “It’s uncanny.”

I read Mel Friedman’s wonderful collection of the SML’s from 1958 to 2016. I was actually present for all of them since 1989. So many bemoaned the decreasing interest in applied osteopathy and their concern for the future of osteopathy.

Fred Mitchell Jr. in 1990 said: “If you believe, as I do, that the cranial concept should be part of the practice of medicine in all its branches, then you must be concerned, as I am, with it’s dissemination. Why aren’t masses of physicians flocking to our courses?” He described a principle of institutional entropy.“ the observation that institutions and organizations originally created to implement specific goals, tend to assume a life of their own with the goal of survival of the organization taking precedence over the implementation of the original goals.”<sup>24</sup>

Robert Kappler, DO, FAAO, FCA said: “What about the future? What does osteopathy in the cranial field mean to the osteopathic profession and especially to the AAO? And what is the relationship of osteopathy in the cranial field to the osteopathic concept and osteopathic principles? I see OCF as an integral part of the total osteopathic concept, its philosophy principles and practice. It is an integral part, not an isolated section.”

He said, “Still didn’t leave us a technique manual, he left us a philosophy and approach.” Dr. Kappler closed his SML with “The unique osteopathic philosophy developed by Still and Sutherland has been far too vital to be fossilized into a rigid orthodoxy. Our real challenge today is to continue this dynamic tradition with new contributions that will validate and expand the osteopathic approach to patient care.”<sup>25</sup>

is the key to happiness and inner peace. ... Everything on this earth must be in balance.“She said, “The failure of modern medicine is that it deals with the results and not causes. Causes of diseases cannot be found in matter since the cause stems from the mind.

To cure disease, one needs spiritual, mental and emotional effort. If effort is directed to the physical body, it can only superficially repair damage.”<sup>26</sup>

The year before Paula’s lecture, Edna Lay surprisingly spoke about energy medicine. She cited “a tremendous rise in the focus of attention on the effect of energy and its importance in the healing process, ... at all levels—physical, emotional, mental and spiritual.”

“Dr. Sutherland’s terminology of ‘Liquid Light,’ ‘Breath of Life,’ and the potency of the csf which ‘turned off’ many of his contemporaries now appear to be quite appropriate for the subtle energies which run the machinery of the body.” She spoke about the changes in medicine that we will see in the next 50 years (that’s now). “Gradually chemical medicine will give way to an understanding of the necessity for a balance between the physical, structure and function, and the realm of energies.” She said, “Dr. Sutherland’s legacy, the Cranial Concept, will be an essential part of that understanding because he discovered a functional linkage between the physical body and the energies which vivify and keep it in functional balance.”<sup>27</sup>

Most of us think about Dr. Fulford when there is talk of energy medicine. In his SML in 1979 he said, “Of what is the body made? It is made of space and rhythm. At the ultimate heart of the world, there is no solidity. Once again there is only the dance. Rhythm. Dr. Sutherland was aware of oscillating fields and waves of rhythm, but knew that the students could not comprehend this concept if presented in electrical waves.”

Fulford studied with Dr. Walter Russell and was familiar with his concept of the law of balance. The universal law of balance is that principle of equal interchange between all creating things which preserve both the unity and continuity of the universe. Balance is the principle of unity and of oneness. In it is stability. Balance interchange is the principle of equal giving between moving pairs of unbalanced opposites. Rhythmic balance interchange is the principle of continuity of effect. The law of balance is the law of love upon which the universe is founded. Love is, therefore, the fundamental principle of nature, and rhythmic balance interchange is the keynote of its expression through action.”

“Dr. William Garner Sutherland, a genius, was one of the rare few in whom the awakening of inner vision has so increased their range of perception that the invisible and unknown spiritual half of the Universal idea has become visible and known.” <sup>28</sup>

Doc Fulford, another person whose presence I loved to stand in, was one of my most important teachers. He taught us to always approach a patient “with pure intention and unconditional love.”

This is a tribute to William Garner Sutherland and his teacher, Andrew Taylor Still who wrote in his autobiography, “Once in the operating-rooms you are in a place where printed books are known no more. Your own native ability, with nature’s book, are all that command respect in this field of labor. Here you lay aside the long words, and use your mind in deep and silent earnestness; drink deep from the eternal fountain of reason, penetrate the forest of that law whose beauties are life and death.

To know all of a bone in its entirety would close both ends of an eternity. Solemnity takes possession of the mind, a smile of love runs over the face, the ebb and tide of the great ocean of reason, whose depths have never been fathomed, swell to your singing brain. You eat and drink; and as you stand in silent amazement, suns appear (where you never saw even a star).“ <sup>29</sup>

As John Lewis commented in his wonderful biography of Still: “They must understand that Osteopathy is, first and foremost a philosophy. All their reasoning on health and disease must be guided by this philosophy. Medicine is grounded upon scientific materialism; osteopathy, while embracing all verifiable scientific facts, challenges the ultimate authority of science, declaring its materialist suppositions unsatisfactory when applied to the living being. The whole edifice of osteopathy rests upon an observable, spiritual, truth unexplained by any known scientific law: organic nature strives inexorably to express health.”

These days I don’t see many graduates of colleges of osteopathic medicine standing in silent amazement. I don’t see many students who have even read the writings of Still much less Sutherland. Some see Still’s writings as outdated and irrelevant but, as Andy Goldman said in his SML, “Osteopathy is as old as Time itself” and will always be a great contribution to alleviating the suffering of humanity.”

Wildest Dreams

In 2013 when I was president of the OCA, we had a strategic planning session. The facilitator asked us to state what our wish is for the future of the OCA and our profession. She urged us to state our ideal wish if anything is possible. What we really wanted was Still & Sutherland’s osteopathy to be used by every physician in the U.S. and the world.

I still have that dream—that longing to spread this incredible gift to all physicians.

In Research & Practice, Still wrote, “Osteopathy is to me a very sacred science. It is sacred because it is a healing power through all nature.” <sup>30</sup>

Sutherland said, “There is always foam in the surface of the Sea But, if we look deeper, there is Quiet. And, deeper still, there is Love.” <sup>31</sup>

Today we are faced with dreadful consequences of humans, with their illusion of a separation between humanity and nature, attempting to conquer and exploit the natural world. We are in a climate crisis. To me, our hope for the survival of life and health on our planet is to respect nature’s laws and heal by its influence. And to recognize that love “is the primary field of reference, Love is the primary cause, the essence, the fundamental source from which all life flows and is sustained.”<sup>32</sup>

Donald Hankinson, DO, FCA, in his SML said, “If we were seeking to practice osteopathy as Dr. Still and Dr. Sutherland envisioned and to live our lives with all the meaning and integrity and wholeness of which we are capable, then Stillness, although a crucial presence” ... is not our end ... “We can go deeper. We can allow ourselves to be embraced by Love at the center of Stillness ... the central factor in what we do and how we do it. Then we can accompany Dr. Still on his aggressive campaign for Love, Truth, and Humanity: in our personal growth as human beings, in our growth as a community of colleagues, and in our growth as an organization devoted to providing care for health of all Humanity.”<sup>33</sup>

Anne Wales, DO, FCA quoted Dr. Still “on every voyage of exploration I have been able to bring back a cargo of indisputable truths, that all the remedies necessary to health exist in the human body.”<sup>34</sup> This adds up to getting the self-correcting powers within the patient’s body to do the work while the operator watches them in action. This is the view of the magnitude of the science of osteopathy that I find so exciting. This is the potency within as it applies to the self-regulating, self-correcting, and self healing powers that we all know are there.” She ended by saying, “I hope the day will come when all physicians will be working with this view in mind as they undertake to serve suffering humanity.”<sup>3</sup>

I can’t agree more!

My hope is that we can mobilize a surge of osteopathic teachers to nurture those seeds that A.T. planted and W.G.S. brought to light; that the schools will stop diluting osteopathy to some glorified series of maneuvers for musculoskeletal issues; and that they will teach anatomy, anatomy, anatomy, and physiology for thinking-feeling-seeing osteopaths.

[My hope is also] that students will actually read the writings of Still, Sutherland, Becker, etc; that there will be more residencies like St. Barnabas where all patients benefit from this magnificent science; and [that] our lineage of diggers and dreamers grows to lead a loving movement of osteopaths teaching, inspiring, supporting the immense power in the stillness that connects us to all of nature through the greatest force: love.

My advice:

- Question authority.
- Keep your sense of wonder.
- Maintain hope.
- Believe in yourself.
- Rejoice in the universal connectedness of everything and delight in the beauty of it all.
- Laugh, dance, sing and shout, hug, make eye and heart contact, share, remain present.
- And, please help keep osteopathy alive.
